Sales script

For the booth team. What to say to bring in a sale. Use your own words.

profstopick

THE FOUR STEPS

1 Talk to them.
Show them why profstopick is good for them this enlistment.

2 Bring them to the booth.
This is a must. If you let them go, they will not come back to pay.

3 Get them to pay.
Cash, or they scan the GCash QR. Do not let them leave easily.

4 Give them the voucher.
Write the code on the back of the pass card for their pass. No code? Ask Prince.

WHAT TO SAY, STEP BY STEP

1 Open with enlistment

Everyone has enlistment on their mind. Start there.

You say — "Hi! Enlistment season na, diba? Have you picked your profs yet?"

If yes — "Nice. How did you pick them?"

If no — "Same, it's stressful. That's exactly why we made this."

Tip Smile and ask their name. Keep it light.

2 Find the pain

Get them to say the Facebook group is hard to use.

You say — "Are you in the Profs to Pick Facebook group?"

If yes — "Diba, it's so hard to use? You scroll through so many posts and read every comment just to get a feel for one prof. It takes forever."

If no — "That's where students post about their profs. But you'd have to scroll through hundreds of posts and comments to find one prof."

Tip Let them agree. Nod. Most people have felt this.

3 Show the fix

Hand them a flyer, then paint the picture.

Do — Give them a flyer.

You say — "What if you could search your prof in seconds? You see right away if they give easy A's, if the workload is heavy, if they're strict."

You say — "We collected all the reviews and built stats for every prof. You just type a name or a course code."

Tip Ask which prof they are thinking of. That's your way to the booth.

More on the back.

4 Bring them to the booth

This is a must. If they leave now, they will not come back.

You say — “Who’s your prof? Come, let’s look them up on the laptop. It takes one minute.”

Do — Walk with them to the booth. Let them type the search themselves.

Tip — Seeing their own prof is the moment that sells. Don’t skip it.

5 Ask them to pay

Make it easy to say yes. Don’t let them leave easily.

You say — “Reviews are free. A pass gives you unlimited AI advisor asks, for who to take and when.”

You say — “It’s ₱99 for a semester, ₱150 for a year, or ₱250 until you graduate. Which one fits you?”

You say — “Cash or GCash? Here’s the QR.”

Tip — Ask how long they need it, then let them choose. Wait for the payment to come in.

6 Give the voucher

Finish the sale and show them how to use it.

Do — Write the code on the back of the pass card for their pass. No code? Ask Prince.

You say — “Here’s your code. Go to profstopick.com/pass, sign in, and type it under “Have a code”. Let’s do it now.”

Tip — Thank them, and ask them to tell their blockmates.

IF THEY SAY

“I’ll come back later.”	“Sure, but it only takes a minute, and I’ve got the code ready now. Let me show you while you’re here.”
“I’ll just use the Facebook group.”	“You can, but it’s slow. We already read all of it for you and turned it into stats for each prof.”
“Is it free?”	“Yes. Reviews, ratings, and the schedule builder are free. The pass adds unlimited AI advisor asks.”
“It’s too expensive.”	“₱99 covers your whole semester. And if it’s not for you, you get a full refund within 7 days.”
“I don’t like AI.”	“Fair. Our AI runs on our own PC at home, not in a data center. And everything else works without it.”
“Is it okay to use the Facebook posts?”	“We don’t copy the posts. Every review is de-identified first: names, profile links, and anything that could identify the writer are removed.”
“I’m not enlisting this term.”	“No problem. Do you have a friend or blockmate who is? Here’s a flyer for them.”
